THE BALLOT SYSTEM DEBATE.

The continuance of the debate concerning the California and the Australian election systems serves to evolve the truth and to broaden public intelligence upon one of the most important subjects before the American people. The extracts below are from the San Francisco Chronicle of Saturday, and constitute its latest reply to the RECORD-UNION:

The RECORD-UNION is in its attempts to create a record of the American election system, misrepresents the California election law. We do not know that "voting cattle are driven to the polls" and that "voting is a dead issue." As far as we know, the ballot box is the only place where a voter can go to vote. The contrary, such a performance is impossible: certainly no such thing ever happened. There is no doubt that bosses wish to buy men, but they cannot make them vote, for the law guards against that by the 100-foot provision.

The RECORD-UNION has not in one job or title misrepresented the working of the California election law. The 100-foot provision of the law is simply this, as our contemporary can ascertain by examination of Section 1192 et seq. of the Political Code: That no one shall deliver or receive a ballot, except the officers of the election, within the 100-foot limit; that no one shall fold or unfold a ticket that he intends to use in voting within the limit (the stakes are ours); that no one shall exhibit the contents of any ticket that he intends to use in voting within the limit; that no one shall request another to exhibit or disclose the contents of a ticket that he intends to use in voting within the limit; that is the 100-foot limit law upon which our contemporary places so much stress, as being superior to modern systems. We do not pretend to know from observation how the law is administered in San Francisco, but we do know that every where else it is more notorious in the breach than honored in the observance. The limit provisions do not prevent the massing of a crowd around the polling place. They do not prevent or forbid the interested party from taking a voter by the elbow and marching him to the ballot box. At every election of which we have any knowledge this is done. Moreover, the dominant party in the district usually has a crowd of henchmen about the polls who open the way for a voter steered by one of their number, but hinder and delay the approach of all others. We do know that hundreds of citizens have been thus delayed, often to the exclusion of their votes, especially at the time shortly before the closing of the polls. The law does not forbid one keeping hold of the hand of the voter holding the ballot given to him, until it is elevated to deliver the ballot to the Inspector or Judge, and this is a very common practice. The "steerer" of voters never loses sight of the ticket put into the hand of the voter, and he must be more skilled than Herman and quicker than the Fakir of Siva, who can change this ballot after the spy or the "steerer" has fixed his eye upon him. All we have contended for on this point is proved by the Massachusetts, Connecticut, Kentucky and Wisconsin systems, and that about to go into operation in Indiana; the voter comes from a booth where he has opportunity to prepare his ballot in privacy, and goes alone to the ballot-box, with no person except the election officers near enough to him to overrule him privately, unless we except the challengers. We put it to the Chronicle to answer if such an arrangement, preventing as it does all crowds about the polls, and masking the ballot absolutely secret, is not an improvement upon the California system? As a matter of fact, every provision of the California law concerning the exposure, delivery, receipt and discussion of ballots within the 100-foot limit is disregarded at every election in this State, and men deliver and receive ballots, expose their contents and sold voters openly and in perfect contempt of the law prohibiting such action within the limit named. If here and there an offender is warned by a conscientious officer, he has a convenient escape by declaring that it is not his intention to use the ballot exposed in voting. For it will be observed that the exposure of ballots is not unlawful within the limit unless it can be established that it was the intention to use the ballot or ticket disclosed, and this is a task that is more difficult.

The American system cannot stop the purchase of voters and the "delivery of the ballot," provided the purchased voters with a purchase, any better than the California method.

Admitted, but the modern system gives even the purchased voter full opportunity to repeat. It is because the purchaser, under the "booth" system, cannot assure himself that the goods he has purchased will be delivered, that he opposes the reform, and it follows that if the new method of conducting the election is adopted, he will cease to buy, since the investment will be too precarious.

The printing of ballots is the only obstacle to carrying out the scheme of buying voters, who would soon devise means to procure as many tickets as they needed to carry out their purpose.

Will the Chronicle, which certainly estems itself as cunning and witty as the most adroit fox could hope to be, suggest a single scheme by which, under the reform system, outsiders can possibly procure tickets? If it will name any means to procure tickets, outside of purchase of the State officials who issue the ballots, and connivance of the Board of Election officers, the canvassers, and of the tribunals that recount in case of contests, we will concede the entire case, and admit that the reform methods are deceptions, and that there is no virtue in them. Under the best of these systems the ballots are all numbered, bound, and have a stub for each ballot correspondingly numbered. If a book of two hundred of these ballots is issued on an Election Board, and the series is from 9,000, to 9,200, none of those numbers can be duplicated in the ballot-box without discovery and rejection of the fraudulent ballots. It is simply impossible for ballots to be procured on the outside except by collusion of so large a number of officials, to make the task one that will scarcely be hazarded.

As the wonderful improvement that gives "the voter" the right to put his name on a ticket, is a right which he already enjoys, as the numerous independent electors, the best Advertising Mediums on the Pacific

DEDICATORY SERMON,

DELIVERED BY REV. C. P. MASSEY
ON YESTERDAY.The Unitarian Society Holds Its First Service in the New Pythian Castle.

The new Pythian Castle was filled almost to its capacity yesterday morning, the initial use of the building having been given to the First Unitarian Society for its religious services, and a programme of more than unusual interest was presented. An efficient choir, composed of Miss Emma Felton, Miss Hattie Wheat, Mr. Richard Cohn and Mr. George W. Shannon, with Miss Gertrude Gerrish as organist, and Mr. Charles A. Neal as special accompanist occupied the neat little gallery, which has been tastefully curtailed, and rendered the following selections: Quartette, "Veniite" (Buck); quartette, "Calvary" (Rodney); trio, soprano, tenor and bass, "Stars of the Night Shine O'er Us" (Campana); offering, "Angels' Serenade;" soprano solo, with flute obbligato and quartette, "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah."

Rev. C. P. Massey took for his text 1 Timothy 1, 5: "Now the end of the commandment is charity, out of a pure heart and a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned."

Mr. Massey commenced by saying: "I cannot avoid a feeling that those under the watchful direction of the world, no greater than ours, have made an out-and-out outlook and oratory of a religious worship must look upon this initial use of the edifice by which we dedicated it to the service of Almighty God."

With the exception of a few who are following the commandment, they have

The Sacramentoans Receive Their Usual Dose at the Bay.

THE STORM IS ABATING.

Tom Barry Wins a Fight in Sehome After Nine Desperate Rounds.

[SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.]

NEARLY A SHUT-OUT.

The Sacramentoans Play Their Usual Amusement Game.

SACRAMENTO, October 27th.—Sheehan was sick to-day and Fred Carroll, the Pittsburgh catcher, umpired the game between the home nine and the Sacramentoans. Knell was wild and could not find the plate at all, and the visitors' batters send in men to first on calls balls. In the fifth Barry rushed Donovan, closing both of his eyes and splitting his lip. In the fifth Barry got weak and was knocked down twice. He then sparred for his second wind until the ninth round, and from that on he again rushed the fight and punished Donovan unmercifully.

Tom Troubles at All.

SACRAMENTO, October 27th.—At the Y. M. C. A. Convention, recently held in this city, the delegates subscribed $800 on condition that the money be used to help balance the debt of the Y. M. C. A. building. In addition to these subscriptions, sufficient was collected at the churches this morning to cover the indebtedness and leave a balance of $218 over.

BURDEN IN THE PULPIT.

The Famous Humorist Preaching in From the Chicago Inter-Ocean, Oct. 1.

The true humorist is he who impresses the world as much with the laughter he provokes as with the tears he draws from his listeners. He presents the ridiculous and the sublime alike, and in doing so he becomes impressive.

Robert J. Burdette is such an impressive humorist, and he is behind his pulpit and laugher is carried by tears. This combination proves the great convincing power to man. A man convinced by dint of impersonal example listens unconsciously to the noblest sermon, for it is the simplest and most powerful.

That Brother Burdette should therefore be less surprising than one would expect is due to the fact that he is the author of the funniest lectures are always sermons. He is the one humorist, the one lecturer on the American platform who can sooth human hearts, who can with a few words impress a moral upon his hearers without apparently attempting to do so. That is able to preach is therefore self-evident; that he should be fond of preaching the word of God is equally surprising.

Now, to be won over to the pulpit, the people are as anxious to hear him preach in the pulpit as they are happy to hear him speak on the rostrum.

Some 2,000 people witnessed Mr. Burdette's debut as a preacher in the West Sunday night. They went to Grace M. E. Church, on L. Sale avenue, early in the evening, and the service was to be postponed by the rain. There is talk of having the Stockton and Sacramento playing their postponed game here, but nothing definite was settled on.

SHE WAS TOO YOUNG.

Her Husband Deserted Her and Clinged to Her Mother.

ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.), October 27th.—On the evening of the 15th of last month, a young woman bound for San Francisco. She left the coast for a time, and with a downcast appearance and her head dropped, passed the platform, looking for some comfort. There was a sad look on the young woman's face, and a reporter, who noticed her strange maneuvers, approached the young woman and began a conversation.

She told a sad and pitiable tale. She said she was without money and friends, but had a ticket for California. She was married about a year ago to a young man in Providence, and, just before her departure, her mother said, "As soon as the child was born," she said, "and I could travel, I left for California, where I have relatives. The morning I left, I had no money, but I had a ticket for New York, and I had to go to New York to earn my passage. I had to leave the life of my child. It had died in my arms. A local undertaker took charge of its precious remains, and the body was interred in a cemetery.

"My life is a sad one, but I shall try to outlive the sorrows which have been thrust upon me in the past few weeks."

"Yes, I am a widow, sixteen years of age last Thanksgiving Day. My folks are Portuguese and I am the only daughter. My father is dead, and my mother, though I shall try to forgive her, never forgot her. She has left me, taking away my husband."

The reporter asked the name of the woman who gave her name as Martha Simons as the conductor cried "All aboard!" She spoke in dolorous words and stopped occasionally to wipe away the tears. Her fears were true, and her conversation indicated that this young woman had received a fair education.

PROBABLY OVER.

The Storm Lets Up Again and Old Sol Beams Forth.

ONE, October 27th.—A drizzling rain commenced falling Saturday and continued with occasional heavy showers till last night, when for the storm and 5 inches for the season. Today the rain was warm and bright. The cattle and sheep are doing well on the green grass. The creeks were high last night but are receding rapidly. A few gales have been spoiled, but otherwise the rain gives general satisfaction.

PLACERVILLE, October 27th.—The storm is broken at last. The fall was 2 inches, and for the season, 71 inches. But little
